Augmenting Statistics: Better and Faster Data-Driven Decisions

About ROeS

The Austro-Swiss Region (ROeS) of the International Biometric Society is a non-profit scientific society advancing statistical methodology across medicine, biology, pharmacy, epidemiology, and genetics. While rooted in Switzerland and Austria, our biennial conference regularly hosts global members, researchers, and experts.

Leadership: Hosted by the Local Organizing Committee Chair (Dominik Heinzmann), & Co-Chair: (Michael Vock)

About the conference:

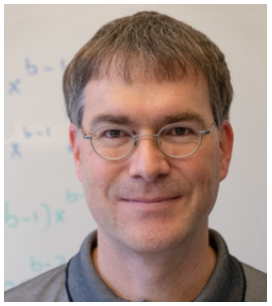

The biennial conference provides an international forum for state-of-the-art biostatistical methods, clinical research methodology, knowledge sharing and exchange between academia, healthcare and industry.

Conference Demographics

Global & Regional Reach: Attendees from Switzerland, Austria, broader Europe, and international research hubs.

Target Audience: Biostatisticians, data scientists, clinical trialists, epidemiologists, PhD students, and early-career researchers.

Why Support ROeS 2027?

Targeted Visibility:

direct engagement with key quantitative researchers and decision-makers.

Empower Early-Career Talent:

Contributions directly fund travel grants and keep registration fees accessible for PhD students.

Academic-Industry Synergy:

Showcase your methodology leadership and data-driven solutions in an intimate setting.
